Asking the Right Questions: A Guide to Critical Thinking in the kinds of questions you ask. Types of Questions To develop variety in questioning, you need to know what kind of questions you commonly ask. Research on the questions teachers ask shows that about 60 percent require only recall of facts, 20 percent require students to think, and 20 percent are procedural (Gall, Dunning, and Weathersby, 1971).

questions, sometimes with only slight changes. Questions about computers replacing teachers sound a lot like the old class size issue. Some wonder if online learning is too focused on drilling fundamentals rather than exploring concepts. Budget issues now involve expensive technology replacing other costs or whether we even need textbooks.
