In statistics, a confidence interval (CI) is a type of interval estimate, computed from the statistics of the observed data, that might contain the true value of an unknown population parameter. The interval has an associated confidence level that, loosely speaking, quantifies the level of confidence that the parameter lies in the interval. More strictly speaking, the confidence level ...

Global warming is a long-term rise in the average temperature of the Earth's climate system, an aspect of climate change shown by temperature measurements and by multiple effects of the warming. The term commonly refers to the mainly human-caused observed warming since pre-industrial times and its projected continuation, though there were also much earlier periods of global warming.

Table 1: The four levels/modes of processing. Figures 3, 4, and 5 show how within the processing model, cognition depends upon context. The effectiveness of the contribution of processing activities at each of these levels / modes, depends on the cognitive requirements posed by the specific context.

For example, if is a 95% upper one-sided bound, this would imply that 95% of the population is less than . If is a 95% lower one-sided bound, this would indicate that 95% of the population is greater than . Care must be taken to differentiate between one- and two-sided confidence bounds, as these bounds can take on identical values at different percentage levels.
