Humanism, in brief, is a philosophy (or religion) the guiding principle of which is concentration on the welfare, progress, and happiness of all humanity in this one and only life. In the Moral Majority's assault on Humanism, I was immediately concerned, being honorary president of the American Humanist Association.

Talk of possible worlds is now a commonplace within philosophy. It began, nearly three hundred years ago, within philosophical theology. Leibniz thought it reassuring to say that although our world contains much that is evil, it is nonetheless the best of all possible worlds. Few philosophers today find this statement very plausible.

Swami Sivananda holds philosophy to be the Vedanta or the consummation of knowledge, Brahavidya, or the sacred lore of the Eternal, which is inseparable from Yogasastra, or the methodology of the ascent of the finite to the infinite. It is the way to the knowledge of being as such, of that which is.

My philosophy of education is based on what I know and have experienced at this point in my career. I am sure that my teaching philosophy will change as I learn more as a young professional. That's one of the gifts of being human; we can make mistakes, or learn something new, and make a change for the better.

Philosophy is the most inclusive of all branches of learning, and acts as a touchstone to all other aspects of human knowledge. Philosophy is a rational enquiry into the forms, contents and implications of experience. It is an attempt at a complete knowledge of being in all the phases of its manifestation in the various processes of consciousness.
