Scientific computing is a much smaller niche market (in revenue and units shipped). It is used in government research labs and universities. Before 1990, CPU design was often done for this market, but mass market CPUs organized into large clusters have proven to be more affordable.

General-purpose computing on graphics processing units (GPGPU, rarely GPGP) is the use of a graphics processing unit (GPU), which typically handles computation only for computer graphics, to perform computation in applications traditionally handled by the central processing unit (CPU). The use of multiple video cards in one computer, or large numbers of graphics chips, further parallelizes the ...

Most optimisation methods use an iterative procedure. The initial set X design variables, which in the context of aerodynamic optimisation this is referred to as the baseline configuration, and is updated until a minimum of $F(X)$ is identified or the optimisation process runs out of allocated time/iterations. In the initial set-up of the optimisation problem consideration must be given to: 1 ...
